I thank him especially for the manly stand

he took upon one point, which has not been so much discussed here as others; I mean the so much discussed here as others; I mean the plain, absolute unconstitutionality and illegality of the attempt of the Executive to enact laws by Executive authority in conquered territories out of the United States. Sir, whether the power exists in the President or not may be inferred by answering another question: Does he wear a crown? That is the only-question. If he is the king of the country, if we are his subjects, and they who are conquered by the arms of the country become his subjects also, and owe him allegiance, why, then, according to well-established principles. why, then, according to well-established principles, until the interference of the legislature, BUT NO LONGER EVEN THEN, he may conquer, he may govern, he may impose taxes, he may assess duties.

Let us not confound ideas that are in them selves separate and necessarily distinct. It is not the question whether he who is in an enemy's country at the head of an army, may not supply his daily wants; whether he may not, if he choose so to conduct the war, seize the granaries and herds of the enemy in whose country he is. That is one thing; but the question is here, whether, sitting in the presidential house by an act of mere authority to a public servant with limits strictly written down, he suddenly appears, when elected, a despot-monstrous and irresponsible, and our master. The law of nations certainly does not forbid slaves from being given up. If so, our treaty with Great Britain in the close of the war of 1812 was a violation of it; for then Mr. Adams, being Minister, insisted on having the treaty of Ghent carried out, by which slaves were restored to American owners, and Mr. Adams at the time denounced the very doctrine that the domestic relations of a country could be

It is common to abuse the right of secession as a heresy. We intend to keep the doctrine in reserve. We don't know what use we may have for it. If the Union is restored, we are sgainst the right of secession; but if it be divided by the folly and wickedness of this generation, we think the right of secession ought to be taken care of; for, from present appearances, either half of the Union will make a government which it will be eminently fit to secede from. Most of their people will soon come to believe, not only in the right of secession, but that secession is right. There is said to be an irrepressible conflict; but between the North and South opposite follies neutralize each other, and have heretofore left the wisdom and virtue of the country to get along respectably.

In a government, we must have somebody to abuse; and the politicians of the two sections, as well as the people, have found great profit and gratification in abusing each other. What would a New Englander do if he could not thank God that he was not as other men are, not even as the publicans and sinners of ness of this generation, we think the right of

The New York Evening Post has found the philosopher's stone, which will cure all sympathy with the rebellion, and all discontent. It is simple-very: "Defeat, capture, scatter and destroy the rebel armies." That constitutions which arise from the service due, according to the existing laws of the invaded country, from one citizen, subject or native of the same, to another. The commander of the army must leave it to the ultimate treaty of peace to settle the permanency of this change.

42. Slavery, complicating and confounding the ideas of property (that is of a thing) and of personality (that is of humanity), exists according to municipal or local law only. The law of nature and nations has never acknowledged it. The digest of the Roman law enac s the early dictum of the Pagan jurist, that "so far as the law of nature is concerned, all men are equal." Fuglitives escaping from a country in which they were slaves, villains, or seris, into another country, have for centuries past been held free and acknowledged free by judicial decisions of European countries, even though the municipal law of the country in which the slave had taken refuge acknowledged slavery within its own dominions.

43. Therefore, in a war between the United States and a belligerent which admits of slavery, if a person held in bondage by that belligerent the captured by or come as a fugitive under the protection of the military forces of civilized race, some showman lost a ribinocal decision of the military forces of civilized race, some showman lost a ribinocal decision of the military forces of civilized race, some showman lost a ribinocal decision of the military forces of civilized race, some showman lost a ribinocal decision of the military forces of civilized race, some showman lost a ribinocal decision of the military forces of civilized race, some showman lost a ribinocal decision of the result senter and destroy the restelling two talk sense or nonsense, just defeat, capture, scatter and destroy the rebel armies. MEMPHIS, May 25.

By the arrival of the Luminary, which left Young's Point on the morning of the 22d instant, we get the following sketch of the campaign of General Grant since the 15th inst.:

On the 15th the larger part of the army lay stretched out from a point a few miles west of Raymond to Jackson, anticipating an attack from the direction of Edwards' Station. Gen. Grant suddenly massed his forces between Raymond and Bolton, Sherman moving down from Jackson, north of the railroad, and towards Bolton, Blair's division and Ransom's stretwards lay on or near the main road from Raymond to Bolton. On the 16th, the movement toward Edwards' Station began.—Hovey's division of McClersand's corps, followed by McPherson's on the right by the road from Bolton; Osterhaus' division, followed by Blair's on the left by the first road from Raymond to Edwards' Station. Ransom's brigade afterwards' Station, followed by Blair's on the left by the first road from Raymond to Edwards' Station. Ransom's brigade afterwards' Ransom's brigade afterwards' Station. Ransom's brigade afterwards' Ransom's brigade afterwa the granaries and heros of the enemy in whose country he is. That is one thing; but the question is here, whether, sitting in the presidential house by an act of mere authority, when the country is conquered and subdued, the President of the United States may by, and of, and through his own power, establish in Mexico a code of civil law. We have read, sir, and some of us have not forgotten it, in books of authority treating of the law of nations, that when a country is conquered and coded, its existing laws are not changed till the competent authority of the conquering power changes them. That I hold to be the universal foctime of public laws. Well, here is a system of levying taxes, repealing old laws, and making new once. * * * I am happy in having an opportunity of expressing my repugnance to all the doctrine and all the practice. * to put this question in a proper and clear light before the community and before the Constitution is itself superseded by the high. corps advanced from Edwards' towards Big Black, and about 4 o'clock attacked the enemy in his earth-works at the railroad bridge—Carr's division moving up on the right and General Osterhaus on the left, with General Smith as reserve. After fighting about two hours, with some ekirmishing, our right charged in upon the left of the enemy, and our left at the same time advancing rapidly, the works were captured. We took about 2,500 prisoners and eighteen guos, the enemy retreating in great disorder over the Big Black. Gen. Osterhaus was slightly wounded at the beginning of the fight, and his division was then commanded by Gen. A. L. Lee.

As soon as the works were taken Gen. Lee proceeded to construct a floating bridge over the Big Black, on which the corps of McClernand and McPherson crossed early next morning, and marched on Vicksburg.

Sherman's corps, having in the meantime crossed on a pontoon bridge five miles above, on the evening of the 18th, our army came in sight of the works immediately in the rear of Vicksburg, and distant from the city about two miles.

This overthrows all former ideas of a limit to martial law. If it can overthrow the existing laws of a country, we have advanced no further in civilization than when the captives taken by the Romans in battle were used as slaves, or, falling into the hands of the African, who loved one another as a man and a brother, were eaten. Instead of trying to limit that all-grasping power, it declares there is no limit to it. If Dr. Lieber's chapter on martial law there is no limit to it. quondam cotton merchant resolved to make one final risk and quit.

Collecting together about $50,000 he went to Helena, and from there into the interior of Arkansas, where he again invested all his wealth in cotton. Shortly after having made the purchase, and with visions of $100,000 in his eyes, a portion of our forces moved in the direction of where the cotton was stored. The plantation was vacated, the cotton unprotected, with no one to claim it, the cotton merchant having absented himself for the purprotected, with no one to claim it, the cotton merchant having absented himself for the purpose of procuring transportation for its removal to market. The cotton was accordingly seized, confiscated, and sold for the benefit of the Government.

The cotton merchant made complaint, gave proof of his ownership, and claimed payment, but ail to no avail. Some time afterwards he arrived in this city, and it being late at night, he took lodgings at one of our hotel, which being crowded, he was placed in a room with two strangers.

The United States detectives had for some me past been on the trail of two cotton smugglers, and upon the morning following the arrival of our broken cotton merchant, he, with his two room-mates, was arrested and placed in Gratiot-street Prison, where the trio

The facts in the above case were developed during the recent sitting of the Military Court of Inquiry, and can be relied upon as strictly true.—[St. Louis Republican. [Special to the Cincinnati Commercial.]

Washington, May 27.

WASHINGTON, May 27.

The council of war, held yesterday at the White House, was the result of the last visit of Senators Wade and Chandler to the army of the Potomac, and had reference to the offensive movements which the rebels in Virginia have been far some time threatening.

General Hooker is said to express the opinion that the enemy is bringing up all his forces from Charleston and probably North Carolina for a desperate aggressive movement.

In view, however, of the publicity given to these threats by the rebels themselves, it seems more likely that their design is to provide for the defense of Richmond, and, by their usual bluster, to deter Hooker from another immediate advance.

Gen. Grant's dispatch to the President, received yesterday, is very satisfactory in its details, but it contains information which, if published, might be useful to the enemy.

Letter from Clarksville.

[Correspondence of the Louisville Democrat.] CLARKSVILLE, TENNESSEE, TUESDAY, May 26, 1863.

Messrs. Editors: The weather keeps dry and warm. The booming river of the winter is dwindling to a summer stream. There is now less than three feet of water on the shoals. A fleet of light-draught boats will go above this morning.

I visited the camps of the Twenty-eighth Kentucky and One Hundred and Second Ohio last Sabbath, and attended divine service held Grant's Army Stretching Around the in a beautiful grove. Both regiments marched out fully equipped, and stacking arms in squares around the rude pulpit, seated themselves upon the green grass, and listened to the word of God preached in "God's first temple." The Rev. Dr. Hunter, of your city, preached a vigorous and telling sermon. The preached a vigorous and telling sermon. The scene was one of deep interest and strange novelty, but a weekly occurrence here. Colonels Boone and Givens discipline their sol diers in attending divine service, as well as in all other regulations of campa.

A gentleman from Charlotte yesterday informed me that Colonel Ross' regiment was broken and scattered. "Renb," as they call the Colonel, has given signs of insanity lately, and, as he never was very bright, his soldiers began to distrust his ability to command, and refused to remain with him. Most of them being conscripts returned to their homes, leaving Ross with a very small circle of admirers. The destruction of the Hampton tressel work is presumed to have been done by him, as my informant said he had left Charlotte with about twenty five men, and was thought had gone to his home, which is about four miles from Hampton. The gentleman's story bears the impress of truth, as the madcap dash of Ross, with a handful of men, upon our picket lines two weeks ago, and other movements of a similar nature, would tend to the belief that "Reub" was either drunk or gone crazy.

Letter from Bowlinggreen.

[Correspondence of the Louisville Democrat.] THIRTY-FOURTH KY. VOLS., CAMP JUDAH, Bowlinggreen, Ky., May 26, 1863.

Messrs. Editors: Having, like the King o rance, "marched up the hill and then marche down again," I will seize the opportunity afforded ne in the tent of Commissary Sergeant Shaw of writing to you, while he is writing to somebody else—may be his wife? The reason I give these particulars of my whereabouts is because I am only an orphan of the Thirty fourth, and like a "wandering Jew" have to get what I want the best way I can; but, thank goodness, I am at the same time very much unlike him, for, like the "jolly old Friar," rery much unlike him, for, like the "jolly old Friar,"

"wherever I walk no money I want," and I wish it would not look like fulsome praise to name each individual who bids me welcome to their hospitable board, be it spread with fat or lean things. I must, however, mention among them Lieutenants Tindell, Dally, Uncle George, Mr. Wright and old Aunt Rhody.

Professor Albert Deville, who is teaching sword and bayonet exercise to a good many officers of this post, gave an entertainment in the Baptist church last evening, to publicly exhibit the proficiency of his puplis, and was ably assisted by the band of the Twenty-third Michigan, under the leadership of Drim-major Van Buskirk, a fine amateur band of string instruments, including Joseph Mc-Kinney, violinist, of the Sixth Michigan Battery. The church was well filled with ladies and officers, among whom was General Judah, commander of the post; and in order to give yeu an idea of the order in which the exercises were conducted, I will proceed in order as they occurred, and not according to order of programme:

Overture—Band.

Bayonet and Saber—Prof. Deville, saber, and Lieut. Sharp (Thirty-fourth Kentucky), bayonet. This exercise was well executed, but unfortunately the Professor received a severe thrust from the Lieutenart in the left finger of the right hand, which, I am afraid, will cause him some trouble; but he went on with the exercises as though nothing had happened, nor were the audience aware of any such accident.

All possibility of escape is cut off, and every living man, woman and child must fall into our hands.

In the forenoon yesterday different brigades were taking positions, forming lines of battle, and at 2 o'clock the battle began in earnest. There was skirn ishing all forenoon.

Gen. Steele drove the enemy from several forts, took one complete line of fortifications, fronted by rifte plits, and his extreme right rested on the river bank, under a bluff, at sundown. His division fought gallantly all day, though hungry, dirty, footsore and sleepy.

Sherman's left and McPherson's right are within supporting distance. Both advanced their line of skirmishers to within fifty yards of the breastworks, and their artillery to within five hundred yards, and are in position at these distances this morning.

McClernand is not progressing so fast, but is doing well.

Which, I am afraid, will cause him some trouble; but he went on with exercises as shough nothing the exercises as shough nothing and had appened, nor were the audience aware of any such accident.

Music—Highland Fling—String Band.

Bingen by the Rhihe—Mr. Hackney. During the delivery of this pathetic peem, some one entered and stamped or stumped across the foor in such an annner as to render it impossible to say how it was delivered, but the applause at its conclusions seemed to say, "well done."

Solo on the Flute—"Belle Brandon"—Thomas Irving. The Bandon"—Thomas Irving and Ruth are due, but they failed to come to time; hence we have no news from down the river. The Black Hawk will come in early to-day.

The Hemphis Bulletin of the 23d says:

Business was very dull yesterday. Had It not been for the receipt of one hundred and fifty-four the Rhihe—Mr. Hackney. During the both sides, the Lieutenant gave his antagonist a "schlack an den kopf" too many, which ended the struggle.

Song—Irish Volunteer—Thos. Irving. This "bold sojer boy," with his shillaleh, very kindly to begin with, informed the audience that they had better be aisy, and if they could not be aisy, to be as aisy as they could; and, in the course of his song, said something about a sergeant promising him stripes, all of which he got on his back. The song called forth loud applause, for there were a great many present whom, I have no doubt, wanted stripes somewhere, if not on their backs. Foil Exercise—Professor Deville and Emil Sherer. Mr. Sherer belongs to Captain Hare's cavalry company, of the Thirty-fourth Kentucky, and handles the foil in such a dexterous, masterly manner, that the Professor had soon to admit it, and thrusts were repeatedly made which would have been fatal to both in mortal combat.

Music—Gallop—String Band.

Bayonet Exercise—Professor Deville and Lieut. Sharpe. This was skillfully executed, and so closely contested be ween teacher and pupil that the Professor quickly ended the exercise, politely informing the audience that the game was too dangerous. There is no doubt that everybody thought so.

Music—Quickstep—String Band.

informing the audience that the game was too dangerous. There is no doubt that everybody thought so.

Music—Quickstep—String Band.

Foil Exercise—Serg't Smith and Mr. Irving. These are two ameteur fencers of considerable ability, but at the start Mr. Irving only assumed the defensive, until the Sergeant disarmed him: then he appeared to warm up, and the balance of the exercise was finished with a vim.

Music—Star-Spangled Banner—Band.

Drake's Address to the American Flag—Hackney. With the exception of a little jerking or shrugging of the shoulders—which Mr. Hackney will do well to correct before it becomes a mannerism, which he will have cause to regret—this patriotic and poetical gem was recited very tastefully. The address was delivered to the new flags of the Twenty-third Michigan and Thirty-fourth Kentucky.

Music—Waltz—String Band.

Saber Exercise—Corporal James B. Struthers, Sixth Michigan battery and Mr. Sherer. The winning politeness of a f-iend caused my absence during this performance, but on good authority I am informed that the Corporal had a decided adantage.

Song—Comic—Irving. He said he preferred cutting his stick to cutting wood and die with devi's he knew than with devils he did not know at this child's dying the devils may be left out altogether (known or unknown); but the song was satisfactory and elicited much applause, so I'm content.

Music—Cotillion—Band.

At this child's dying the devils may be left out altogether (known or unknown); but the song was satisfactory and elicited much applause, so I'm content.

Music - Cotillion—Band.
Foil Exercise.—Lieutenant Sharp and Mr. Sherer. This exercise was so splendidly performed that one enthusiastic individual wanted each to cut the other's head off whenever there seemed to be an advantage on either side.

Music—March—Band.
Saber Exercise—Prof. Deville and Lieutenant Sharpe. A very exciting and interesting affair, to which the Professor very graciously yielded the first bow, whea the enthusiastic gentleman again wanted somebody's head cut off, and did not seem particular which head, or whether it was taken off from behind or before. He must be a kinsman of that distinguished character who cries,

"Off with his head."

Music—Quickstep—String Band.
Tableaux—The performers, with their various weapons, rallying round the flags, borne aloft by Mr. Hackney, who again salutes them with the last verse of Drake's address.

The exercises then closed with the "Red, White and Blue," by the full band.

Lieut. Bailey and Capt. Gruber had each a part assigned on the programme, and a terrific combat with sabers was on the bill for Major Dillard and the Professor, but Capt. Gruber went to Louisville (on the sick list) last Sunday morning. Lieut. Bailey's excuse for not appearing I will not tell you, because I do not know. It may be that he is too pretty to be looked at for the small sun of—; and Major Dillard had several reasons for not obliging the folks with a terrific combat. He is opposed to such hard work, to spoiling his clothes or getting hurt, and had no desire to wipe the Professor off the face of the earth.

Mr. Hackney, on behalf of the Professor, thanked the ladies and gentlemen for their kind and courteers attendance, at the same time stating that several more exhibitions would be given, with change of programme every evening, and that to-morrow evening will be devoted to the benefit of the church, when Alf. Deserters are coming in daily. The greater number are from Tennessee. They were impressed into the service, and report that there are great numbers who would come over to our lines if they were not afraid to make the attempt. Many are in the service contrary to their wishes; many more are tired of the war, and would be glad to effect their escane.

The real object of the leaders of the rebels in relation to Kentucky may not be so very plain; but there can be no question that the rank and file are anticipating an invasion of the State. Intercepted letters, directed to friends in various parts of this States, point to it clearly.

—On Sunday last, Francis M. Fields, of company H, 45th Ohio, was accidentally shot by another soldier, resulting in his death. LOVE IN A COTTAGE.

They may talk of love in a cottage,
And bowers of trellised vine—
Of nature bewitchingly simple,
And milk maids half divine;
They may talk of the pleasures of sleeping
In the shade of a spreading tree,
And a walk in the fields at morning,
By the side of a footstep free;

The small white hand in mine,

Your love in a cottage is hungry,
Your vine is a nest for files—
Your milkmaid shocks the graces,
And simply talks of pies.
You lie down to your shady slumber,
And wake with a bug in your ear—
And your damsel, that walks in the morning,
Is shod like a mountaineer.

And mightily likes his cas; He also has an eye for a dinner, And stars 'heath shady trees. His wing is the fan of a lady— His foot's an invisible thing— His arrow is tipped with a jewel, And shot from a silver string.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

The Latest and Most Important Discovery of the 19th Century.

No MAN'S NAME IS MORE INTIMATELY COnrected with the history of the Materia Med ca of the United States, or more favorably known as a pioneer is med cal discovery, than that of Dr. JOHN BULL, of Louisville By. Siminitable preparation of Sarsaparilla, has long stood at the head-of the various compounds of that v. Julied criss. His Compound Petrogal, out the Wild Christopher South; and bis Worm Lozeeges, in the stand a year spread as the continent of North Amer.

DYSPEPSIA. And its attendant train of symptoms, it acts more like a charm than a medi-ine. There is nothing in the whole range of the Materia Medica, that can for a moment bear a comparison with it in this disease,

A full account of this wonderful plant may be fund in the lithedition of the U.S. Dispensatory, pages 1387 and 1388. the 11th edition of the U. S. Dispensatory, pages 1357 and 4388.

A series of experiments in which Dr. Bull has been for years engaged has just been brought to a successful termination, and he is now enabled to offer to the public a combination of Cedron with other approved torics, the whole pre-erved in the best quality of copper-distilled Bourbon whisky, which he is confident has no equal in the world.

He might turnish a volume of certificates, but the public have long since learned to estimate such things at their true value. The safest plan is, for everyone to test for himself the virtues of a new medicine. Give the Codron Bitters, One trial and you will never use any others.

It is not necessary to publish a long list of diseases for which the Cedroa Bitters are a specific.

TOUNG MEN, TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.—D. H. devotes much of his time to the treatment of the YOUNG MEN, TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.—Dr. H. devotes much of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret habit which runs both body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for either business or society. The sad effects of the e early habits, or the excess of riper years, or to weaken and deb litate the constitution destroy the physical and mental powers, diminish and enfeeble the natural feelings, and exhaust the vital energies of manhood: the pleasures of life are marred, the object of marriage frustrated, and existence itself rendered a term of unceasing misery and regret. Such persons, especially those contemp athe marriage, should lose no time in making inmediate application. as Dr. H., by his new treatment, is enabled to insure a speedy and permanent care.
